How did the Fund perform during the reporting period?

The Fund's Class I shares generated a total return of 1.59% for the Fourth Quarter and 6.85% for the full year of 2025. The Fund's benchmark, the Bloomberg 1-3 Year Government Credit Index, returned 1.16% and 5.35% for the same periods. The U.S. Bloomberg Aggregate Bond Index, a longer duration index, returned 7.30% for 2025. That was the highest nominal return for the U.S. Bloomberg Aggregate Bond Index going back to 2020 and was largely driven by falling intermediate maturity interest rates. While various corporate bond indices, both investment grade and high yield, had strong nominal and excess returns, decreasing interest rates were arguably the story of 2025. As the Adviser's forward-looking view of economic strength in the US continued to evolve positively over the Fourth Quarter, the Adviser increased the Fund's corporate bond exposure, taking overall corporate exposure to over 43% of the Fund. Despite this increase the Adviser still maintained the Fund's overall credit quality at the BBB+ ratings category. US Treasury exposure remained approximately flat at 8% of the Fund. Acknowledging from a macroeconomic perspective that inflationary pressures appear set to continue to fall into 2026, potentially leading to lower interest rates, the Adviser extended the maturity of the Fund's US Treasury holdings to take greater advantage of any decrease in interest rates. The Adviser believes the FOMC could deliver more than the nearly two and a half rate cuts the market expected at year-end. In a corresponding move, the Adviser slightly reduced the Fund's floating rate bank loan and CLO exposure to approximately 36%. The Adviser still has a strong belief in the income generation capabilities of bank loans and CLOs. While the Adviser continued to focus on CLOs that profile as near or past the End of The Reinvestment Period, in lockstep with its belief of continued economic strength the Fund moved slightly lower on the CLO capital stack, focusing on securities rated A and BBB. The Fund remains a credit focused, income generating Fund. As such, the expectation is for income generation to continue to be the primary driver of returns for the Fund. From a credit perspective, the Fund continues to experience more credit agency upgrades than downgrades and does not have any individual holdings trading at distressed levels. The Adviser meticulously applies its credit process to every security before it purchases it, recognizing that the Fund may likely hold the security during future, tumultuous times, and want to feel comfortable with every security as a long-term holder.
